Introduction

The Accredited Healthcare Security Management Specialist (AHSMS) course (Level 5) has been designed by industry Subject Matter Experts to help healthcare security specialists protect patients, staff, visitors, assets, and information.

The course gives you the specific industry tools, up-to-date knowledge, and confidence in your skills to do the best professional job you can. It focuses on preventing, deterring, detecting, and responding to security risks across NHS Trusts and Integrated Care Systems.

Participants will explore the NHS legal and policy framework, protective security strategies, violence prevention and reduction, incident management, investigations, and interviewing techniques.

This course adopts a blended learning approach, combining pre-read materials, handouts, group activities, scenario-based learning, five days of in-person instruction, and practical activities. The programme is designed using proven learning principles and methodologies, including active learning, case studies, presentations, self-study, research, and practical activity. Knowledge checks and multiple-choice questions (MCQs) run throughout the course to measure progress and support continuous development.

The programme uses proven learning principles and methods, including scenario-based learning, operational case studies, facilitated discussion, practical exercises, small group work, self-study and research, and contributions from visiting Subject Matter Experts. Knowledge checks and multiple-choice questions (MCQs) run throughout the course to measure progress and support continuous development.

This Level 5 course is the only one that covers all of this subject matter content and gives you accreditation at the end. Our course is accredited by SFJ Awards, and The CPD Standards Office, gaining you 134 CPD points, and is officially endorsed by the International Professional Security Association (IPSA), and the International Association for Healthcare Security and Safety (IAHSS) UK Chapter.

CPD (Continuing Professional Development) points are evidence that you have learnt and maintained up-to-date skills, knowledge, and competence, upholding industry benchmarks. These standards validate structured learning, improve performance, ensure compliance with professional bodies, and facilitate career advancement through recorded, measurable, and diverse learning activities.
